

Julie Fowler

AT&T

Julie Fowler is AVP of International Human Resources at AT&T. She has 25+ years' experience of leading large global teams in the design and execution of HR and business strategy. Currently responsible for a broad range of operational HR support activities across the 55 countries where AT&T has a people presence, bridging where necessary between organizational and geographic differences; partnering within and outside of HR to enable individual and cross functional business initiatives. Other key components of this role include managing a complex and challenging labor relations environment, interfacing regularly with employee representative bodies and driving compliance with legislative and regulatory requirements around the world.

Julie is a career HR professional and a Fellow of the Chartered Institute of Personnel & Development (CIPD), with a wealth of experience in operational, COE and strategic HR Partner roles. She has a keen interest in Diversity & Inclusion and leveraging talent to its full potential, acting in a mentoring capacity to other women leaders within AT&T and supporting young women outside of the business as they look to build their careers.